Date and place:	Region of Murcia (Spain). 28 May to 1 June 2012
Leading organisation:	Judicial School. General Council for the Judiciary. Spain
Language (s):	English and French
Description of the course:	Legal language training and knowledge of the French and English legal systems and their corresponding laws, all prove to be of special interest to European judges wishing to create a common European legal culture. In particular, for judges who have to ensure the correct and fast management of disputes with cross-border dimensions and international judicial cooperation with the above-mentioned countries. Judging by the significant growth of judicial procedures requiring such assistance, there is an increasing urgency for such training to be improved. To that end, we are offering specific training to all those with a good command of these languages who wish to learn how to use them for professional purposes as well as training in the structure and operation of these legal systems.
